

AUTOMATIC TEMPORARY INJUNCTION IN A COLORADO DIVORCE

Upon the spouse being served or signing a waiver in a Colorado divorce or legal separation action, an automatic injunction goes into effect prohibiting both spouses from:

1. Removing the children from Colorado without permission from the other spouse or the family law court. Depending upon the children's ages, a Colorado divorce court would typically grant permission to take an out-of-state vacation, but, over the other spouse's objection, chances of relocating permanently while a divorce in Colorado is pending, are slim to none.
2. Disturbing or harassing the other spouse.
3. Hiding, destroying, transferring or disposing of marital property, except in the ordinary course of business.
4. Canceling or modifying any insurance (health, auto, life, etc.) without your spouse's written consent or the Colorado divorce court's permission.

Effective when Divorce Petition is filed and served.

Automatic Temporary Injunction

§14-10-107

Parties restrained from:

- Transferring, encumbering, concealing or in any way disposing of property, except in the usual course of business or for the necessities of life
  - Must notify the other party
  - Must account to the court
- Molesting or disturbing the peace of the other party
- Removing any child of the parties from the state without consent of the other party or order of the court
- Canceling, modifying, terminating or allowing to lapse, any policy of health, homeowners, renters, auto or life insurance covering either of the parties unless providing at least 14 days advance notice AND written consent of the other party

“Police shall enforce this injunction when presented with copy of divorce petition AND proof of service, if good cause exists to believe a violation has occurred
